

ABSTRACT

A system, apparatus and method for heating water for relaxing sore muscles in isolated areas of the body. Briefly described, in architecture, the system includes a basin that has a plurality of basin openings. The basin openings include at least one inflow opening and at least one outflow opening. A flow tube, which is substantially exterior to the basin, connects the inflow and outflow openings. A heating element is located substantially within the flow tube.